

Lacrima Italic

Type a typewriter

62pt BOLD * LIGHT

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was forced to do it; but if his father bade him fetch anything when it was late, or in the night-time, and the way led through the churchyard, or any other dismal place, he answered "Oh, no, father, I'll not go there, it makes me shudder!" for he was afraid. Or when stories were told by the fire at night which made the flesh creep, the listeners sometimes said "Oh, it makes us shudder!" The younger sat in a corner and listened with the rest of them, and could not imagine what they could mean. "They are always saying 'it makes me shudder, it makes me shudder!' It does not make me shudder," thought he. "That, too, must be an art of which I understand nothing."

The Question Was, Yes, It's Quite Simple:

24/62pt BOLD

Now it came to pass that his father said to him one day "Hearken to me, thou fellow in the corner there, thou art growing tall and strong, and thou too must learn something by which thou canst earn thy living. Look how thy brother works, but thou dost not even earn thy salt." - "Well, father," he replied, "I am quite willing to learn something - indeed, if it could but be managed, I should like to learn how to shudder. I don't understand that at all yet.

"The elder brother smiled when he heard that, and thought to himself: "Good God, what a blockhead that brother of mine is! He will never be good for anything as long as he lives. He who wants to be a sickle must bend himself betimes."

The father sighed, and answered him "thou shalt soon learn what it is to shudder, but thou wilt not earn thy bread by that."

Light * Regular * Bold

24/62pt LIGHT * REGULAR * BOLD

Three Italics

Soon after this the sexton came to the house on a visit, and the father bewailed his trouble, and told him how his younger son was so backward in every respect that he knew nothing and learnt nothing. "Just think," said he, "when I asked him how he was going to earn his bread, he actually wanted to learn to shudder." - "If that be all," replied the sexton, "he can learn that with me. Send him to me, and I will soon polish him." The father was glad to do it, for he thought: "It will train the boy a little." The sexton therefore took him into his house, and he had to ring the bell. After a day or two, the sexton awoke him at midnight, and bade him arise and go up into the church tower and ring the bell.

"Thou shalt soon learn what shuddering is," thought he, and secretly went there before him; and when the boy was at the top of the tower and turned round, and was just going to take hold of the bell rope, he saw a white figure standing on the stairs opposite the sounding hole. "Who is there?" cried he, but the figure made no reply, and did not move or stir. "Give an answer," cried the boy, "or take thy self off, thou hast no business here at night." The sexton, however, remained standing motionless that the boy might think he was a ghost. The boy cried a second time: "What do you want here? - speak if thou art an honest fellow, or I will throw thee down the steps!" The sexton thought: "he can't intend to be as bad as his words," uttered no sound and stood as if he were made of stone. Then the boy called to him for the third time, and as that was also to no purpose, he ran against him and pushed the ghost down the stairs, so that it fell down ten steps and remained lying there in a corner. Thereupon he rang the bell, went home, and without saying a word went to bed, and fell asleep. The sexton's wife waited a long time for her husband, but he did not come back. At length she became uneasy, and wakened the boy, and asked:

"Dost thou not know where my husband is? He climbed up the tower before thou didst." - "No, I don't know,"

Lacrima Italic

30pt LIGHT ITALIC

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyzß
0123456789'":;=<>+,-.?!¿¡;#%&*
©®© ¢$£¥ \|/••--- _«» “ ” ‘ ’
áâãäå òóôõöø ùúûüéèêëìíîïçñ
ÀÁÂÃÄÅ Æ Ó Ô Õ Ö Ø Ù Ú Û Ü É Ê Ë Ì Í Î Ï Ç Ñ

6pt LIGHT ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was forced to do it; but if his father bade him fetch anything when it was late, or in the night-time, and the way led through the churchyard, or any other dismal place, he answered "Oh, no, father, I'll not go there, it makes me shudder!" for he was afraid. Or when stories were told

10pt LIGHT ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a

7pt LIGHT ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was forced to do it; but if his father bade him fetch anything when it was late, or in the night-time, and the way led through the

12pt LIGHT ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither

8pt LIGHT ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was

14pt LIGHT ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was

9pt LIGHT ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was

20pt LIGHT ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and

Lacrima Italic

30pt REGULAR ITALIC

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
 abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyzß
 0123456789'":;=<>+,-.?!¿¡#%&*
 @®© ¢$£¥ \|/••---_«»“”‘’
 áâãäå òóôõöø ùúûüéèêëìíîïçñ
 ÁÀÄÅÄÆÓÒÔÕÖØ ÙÚÛÜÉÈÊËÌÍÎÇÑ

6pt REGULAR ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was forced to do it; but if his father bade him fetch anything when it was late, or in the night-time, and the way led through the churchyard, or any other dismal place, he answered "Oh, no, father, I'll not go there, it makes me shudder!" for he was afraid. Or when stories were told

10pt REGULAR ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a

7pt REGULAR ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was forced to do it; but if his father bade him fetch anything when it was late, or in the night-time, and the way led through the

12pt REGULAR ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither

8pt REGULAR ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was

14pt REGULAR ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was

9pt REGULAR ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was

20pt REGULAR ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and

Lacrima Italic

30pt BOLD ITALIC

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
 abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyzß
 0123456789'":;=<>+,-.?!¿¡#%&*
 @®© ¢$£¥ \|/•.---_«»“”‘’
 áâãäå òóôõöø ùúûüéèêëìíîïçñ
 ÁÀÄÅÆ ÓÒÔÕÖ Ø ÙÚÛÜ ÉÈÊËÌÍÎÇÑ

6pt BOLD ITALIC

10pt BOLD ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was forced to do it; but if his father bade him fetch anything when it was late, or in the night-time, and the way led through the churchyard, or any other dismal place, he answered "Oh, no, father, I'll not go there, it makes me shudder!" for he was afraid. Or when stories were told

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a

7pt BOLD ITALIC

12pt BOLD ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was forced to do it; but if his father bade him fetch anything when it was late, or in the night-time, and the way led through the

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither

8pt BOLD ITALIC

14pt BOLD ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was always the elder who was

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was

9pt BOLD ITALIC

20pt BOLD ITALIC

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and sensible, and could do everything, but the younger was stupid and could neither learn nor understand anything, and when people saw him they said: "There's a fellow who will give his father some trouble!" When anything had to be done, it was

A certain father had two sons, the elder of whom was smart and